

Keiser University to Offer Master's Degree in Career College Administration

Fort Lauderdale, FL—Apr. 16-- Keiser University now offers the Career College community its first Master's Degree that Specializes in Career College Administration. The Master's of Science in Education in Career College Administration is the first of its kind according to Chancellor, Arthur Keiser, Ph.D. This program provides educational leadership training to the thousands of career college administrators heretofore unable to receive a master's in their chosen career field.

"Students will receive both a solid background in Higher Education Administration as well as specific courses designed for the career college professional," stated Sara Malmstrom, Ph.D., Dean of the Graduate School. Some of the areas of study include enrollment management theory and practice, higher education marketing, managing campus operations, personnel selection and development and student retention and management. Keiser University's faculty will include career college leaders and practitioners in order to provide a meaningful and comprehensive educational experience.

The demand for qualified Career College administrators increases as enrollment climbs at the 1,400 member colleges of the national Career College Association. "Students will gain the knowledge that will immediately help their institution to grow and develop," said Dr. Keiser.

"It's a win for the student and a win for the employer."

The master's degree is provided online and designed for the professional who has an extremely busy schedule. The program is accelerated and can be completed in 12 months. Students may enter the program every eight weeks in order to accommodate their individual requirements. Students, who have graduated from an accredited bachelors program, can demonstrate industry involvement, may apply either online at www.keiseruniversity.edu, contact Dr. Sabrina Mohammed toll free at 1-888-7KEISER (1-888-753-4737) or in person at our online campus.
