Sir,

I am an adjunct Professor and have been for the last two years. I see firsthand the positive impact we have on students, specifically the Criminal Justice majors. The relationships Scott Addlesberger has been able to build has created a great source of networking. The Criminal Justice students have access to resources well beyond the campus.

When Scott explained that he wanted to have Virtual Training/Simulator system, I could not agree more. I have been a police officer for 29 years. A large part of my background is in Training and Tactics. As an 11-year member and team Leader of our S.W.A.T. team, I have had the opportunity to train with world class organizations.

Our agency had a Virtual simulator. This afforded us the opportunity to do scenario-based training at any time.

Criminal Justice majors, whether they choose to be Law Enforcement Officers or not, will only benefit by experiencing split second decision making. They will be better able to understand the process when forming an opinion on real life cases.

I know the intention is not to train them for tactics, but to help them gain perspective which is crucial in critical thinking.

I can be of any assistance, please do not hesitate to call.

Regards,

Lieutenant Roy Bevell
