Keiser University has donated training space for the last four years to Florida's Office of Early Learning for professional development. The Office of Early Learning facilitates training, meetings, conferences and seminars to the early childhood educators. The Office of Early Learning relies on partners such as Keiser University to be able to provide professional development to educators in both the public and private sector throughout different parts of the state. The Miami location draws participants from South Broward County to Homestead in Miami Dade County. Keiser University provides excellent customer service, a professional executive setting, and flexible hours. Carmen Perez specifically, has been our contact at Keiser University. Her turnaround time for scheduling professional development and seminars has consistently been prompt and professional. Everyone at the Miami campus is friendly, helpful and professional.
