Since the beginning of the chiropractic program at Keiser University, I have had the opportunity to host chiropractic students for their clinical observation experience in my private practice. I have a great interest and experience in clinical education (currently teaching in five different countries and have published three textbooks on chiropractic manipulative technique that have been translated into three languages) and was honored to have been contacted by Drs. Wiles and Illes at the inception of the program to participate in this clinical observation experience.

I have found the students to have great enthusiasm, professionalism and they have also been so affable and appreciative of the experience they received in my office. All of my staff and doctors enjoy having Keiser University students in our clinic. I am glad to state that this new generation of chiropractors will be among the best ones in the profession. I wish a great future to this program and continued success.

Kindly,

Etienne Dubarry, DC
