To whom it may concern,

I have been a member of the Keiser University Advisory Board since 2007. I continue being an active participant on the Advisory Board because Keiser's educational programs work. Keiser University is important to our organization and community because they produce professional grade healthcare graduates from their allied health programs. I have been in a hiring position in Healthcare since 2007. Regardless of allied health program, the Keiser graduate has a step above the competition. From the very first internship, Keiser students walk in with a solid base and elevated Customer Service skills. The Keiser students I have interacted with have a yearning for knowledge and patients usually cannot tell them apart from licensed team members. Keiser sends their allied health interns out into the field with an extensive knowledge base where they can be active participating members of the healthcare team while completing their internships. Since 2007, I have hired over 25 Keiser graduates and have managed over 60+ Keiser graduates while serving different leadership roles at different Healthcare systems throughout South Florida. When I post an allied health position and see Keiser applicants, I know we will have a productive and successful interview session. Keiser graduates are a natural fit if you value professionalism, teamwork, and elevated Customer Service on your Team.

Warm regards,
