To whom it may concern,

Keiser University is important to AIESEC in Nicaragua because it allows us to connect more young people to the organization to develop the next generation of leaders and connect them with corporate partners and NGOs.

AIESEC is the largest youth-led organization in the world. The organization provides a platform for youth leadership development, where young people build their human capital based on what organizations demand today, focusing on making a positive impact on society.

Through AIESEC's experiential leadership development model, young people can access professional and social exchange experiences, leadership roles, and global learning environments that shape and develop their leadership potential.

At the beginning of Spring 2022, with the help of active KU students, AIESEC opened a new expansion at Keiser University for the 22.23 Generation. This will enable the admission process for new members. This new expansion and its membership seek to create spaces that help develop more young people in the personal and professional sphere and connect young people from Keiser University with different opportunities to help them grow in the future.

Our relationship with Keiser University has benefited the KU community as well. Its students will have a global perspective and constantly look to develop themselves. KULAC has made all of this possible by allowing AIESEC to recognize the expansion as a Student Organization and let them promote our events and activities. Indeed, AIESEC in Nicaragua looks forward to working with Keiser University and helping each other create young leaders.
