Political Science (International Relations Concentration)

Bachelor of Arts Degree

Program Description

The Bachelor of Arts degree in Global Affairs and International Relations explores government policy, processes, political campaigning, political theory, legal studies, and international relations. The degree has a strong liberal arts and research focus designed to prepare students for graduate level training in a variety of disciplines along with entry-level work in a host of disparate fields. This is a broad-spectrum program that introduces students to the general study of the field of global affairs and is suited for students who wish to pursue more focused studies in foreign policy, international organizations, war and diplomacy. Students will examine how governments interact with one another on the world stage, including how nations interact and cooperate in times of peace and times of war, how leaders and countries strategize and make decisions, and how economics interact with politics in order to shape policy outcomes. This program is designed for students with an interest in public policy, international organizations, and foreign affairs, as well as those seeking an academic foundation for work in political campaigns, think tanks, or the legal profession.

Program Mission

The mission of the Keiser University Bachelor of Arts in Global Affairs and International Relations is to provide a liberal arts and research design foundation to explore international government relations, and how culture, economics and politics shape international policy outcomes, processes and theory. The program prepares students for graduate-level training in various disciplines and entry-level positions at all government and private sector levels in the program's scope.

Program Goals

1. Students will evaluate the differences between various government and economic systems.
2. Students will analyze international government frameworks needed to apply political, economic, social, historical, and philosophical concepts to the study of international relations.
3. Students will appraise the stressors that population, natural resources, and environmental issues have on international relations.
4. Students will demonstrate knowledge of the political theories need to analyze policy and international political actions in times of war and peace.
5. Students will effectively express ideas and concepts in writing , research, and analysis in APA.
